Ras looks as if the Mexican climate agreed with him. He has changed but little from his old time self.
James Conway was convicted of petty larceny and sentenced by Judge Linn yesterday to sixty days in the county jail. An admission the prisoner made during the trial proves him guilty of housebreaking and burglary and he will probably be charged with this crime and held to appear before the Grand Jury at the expiration of his present term.
H. H. Hamlin, the optician, is here with the finest line of goods ever handled. Anyone he has furnished glasses to within the past year can have them exchanged without cost if they are not properly fitted. Mr. Hamlin may be consulted at the Arcade Hotel. By patronizing him you have the advantage of being in a position to have your glasses exchanged without cost.

OUR JUMPING JACK NIGHBOR.
Here is what it said last Saturday and Sunday Evening.
(Gazette, September 24, 1898.)
The papers which are talking the loudest about the privations and hardships of the volunteers, are the same papers that raised such a hell-a-balloo because McKinley did not declare war the day after the Maine was sunk. They are also the same journals that wanted to direct every movement of the campaign. Now their tender hearts are breaking because bacon is salt, and hard tack isn't like French bread. They do not voice the sentiments of the volunteers themselves who were, most of them, sensible fellows willing to do their duty and satisfied that their commanding officers were willing to do theirs. Most of the volunteers came from good homes, and many of them left lucrative positions to enter the service. This element has had no complaint to make of food and accommodations. The fellows to squeal were the "tramps" and "riff-raffs" that enlisted to live off Government rations for a while, and in some cases out of ten, when the sensational journals have any foundation for their scare stories, they can be traced to these fellows who, went into the army for a "snap," and are in reality getting much better than they have been used to.
For District Judge.
Wm. Webster, regular Democratic nominee for District Judge of the Second Judicial District including Churchill and Washoe counties, publishes his card in to-day's issue of the JOURNAL. Judge Webster is so well known in western Nevada, that his introduction to the people of this Judicial District is unnecessary. For a third of a century he has been in continuous practice of the law in the State, and during all that time has been a resident of Washoe county. He is a man well versed in his profession and has been successful in his practice. As a counselor and equity practitioner he has no superior in the State and if elected his decisions can always be depended upon as being based and framed upon the correct principles and interpretation of the laws. He is a firm man in his opinions yet always free to acknowledge an error of judgement upon a proper showing being made. If chosen as Judge of the District the taxpayers of Churchill and Washoe may be assured that their interests will be carefully looked after and litigants may feel confident that their claims will, in every instance, have impartial consideration and his best judgement agrees regarding their rights.
Bear Hunters.
Ben Currier and Will Morton drove into town about 4 o'clock last evening from Grizzly Valley where they have been on a week's hunt. They took pains to drive through the principal streets for, spread over their camping outfit in the wagon, was an enormous bear skin, fresh from a cinnamon bear and the head of the animal conspicuously displayed. The boys were considerably elated over their success as bear hunters. Will Morton reports that they had quite a fight with his bear-ship before vanquishing him and Ben got the buck fever pretty bad two or three times during the skirmish, but it would hardly do to tell some of the things he done. The only occasion for doubt as to the seriousness of the conflict is that the tip of an ear of the animal had been neatly clipped as if for a mark, and the fact that the Italian who was exhibiting a trained bear here a couple of weeks ago went northward has a tendency to make some people think the Italian has lost his pet. However the boys brought in the trophy and also a good sized deer. They report having wounded a grizzly, but did not capture him. They had a splendid outing and returned as tough as Indians.
For District Attorney.
The card of Mr. E. L. Williams, the regular Republican nominee for the office of District Attorney of Washoe county, appears in this issue. Mr. Williams aspires to an office to which he is by no means a stranger, having filled the office of District Attorney of Humboldt county for a number of years. He is a man of education and ability and ranks well in his profession. He goes into the fight with the confidence given him by his past experience, that if elected, he can conduct the affairs of the office, no matter how complicated, without extra help and to the entire satisfaction of the taxpayers and people generally of Washoe county. He asks that the voters throughout the county of Washoe consider his claims and aspirations impartially and if they believe him to be fitted for the position he respectfully requests their support.
Yellow Jaundice Cured.
Suffering humanity should be supplied with every means possible for its relief. It is with pleasure we publish the following: This is to certify that I was a terrible sufferer from Yellow Jaundice, for over six months, and was treated by some of the best physicians in our city and all to no avail. Discovered by Woman.
Another great discovery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night; and two bottles, has absolutely cured. Paper Mill on the Truckee.
A company proposes to build a $250,000 paper-making plant on the Truckee river below Floriston. Fred Gould is now making surveys on the river and it is expected that 2,000 horse power can be developed, as the river is quite rapid. The wood in the vicinity is found to be admirably adapted to the manufacture of paper. A carload of it was found by actual test to produce 250 pounds more pulp to the cord than the Oregon wood.

Gypsy Dancing Girls of Seville.

In The Century Mr. Stephen Bonnal writes of "Holy Week in Seville." He says: On returning homeward we enter a gypsy garden, where, in bowers of jasmine and honeysuckle, the Gypsy dancing girls disport themselves as they did in the days of the poet Martini. Pentheus is as graceful and as innocent today as when, in the ages gone, she captured Pompey with her subtle dance—as when Martini danced upon her beauties and graces in classic words centuries ago.

The hotel keepers in Seville are generally very careful to introduce their patrons only to gardens where the flowered editions of the dance are performed, but I commend to those who think they can "sit it out" the archaic versions which are danced naturally today, as they were in the days of the Caesars, by light limbed enchainers of hearts and flamenco girls with brown skins and cheeks that are soft like the side of the peach which is turned to the ripening sun, and in their dark, lustrous eyes you read as plain as print the story of the sorrows and the joys of a thousand years of living.

Now they dance about with the grace of hours, the abandon of menads or of nymphs before Aetna's peak, and now, when the dance is over, the moment of madness past, they cover their feet with shawls, that you may not see how dainty they are, and withdraw sedately and sad from the merry circle and sit for hours under the banana trees, crooning softly some mournful couplet in the crooked gypsy tongue.

Just Like a Girl.

He is a very young boy. His is the age when a lofty contempt for the opposite sex manifests itself, the contempt which usually finds merciless retribution in later years.

His task of watching the baby was not as distressing as it might have been. He had utilized the bassinet as a cradle and had found a place where the floor sloped a little.

Behind the vehicle he extended himself and with head on hand proceeded to read a story paper. An occasional pull at a string fastened to the rear axle imparted the motion necessary to keep the slumberer from waking. But the baby soon had its nap out and began to cry. The boy paid no attention to the noise, and after awhile his sister came to investigate.

"I suppose you are going to lie there and wait for the baby to learn to talk so it can tell you what it's crying about?"

"No," he answered, "being able to talk wouldn't make much difference."

"Why not?"

"Because it's a girl. Girls never know what they're crying about. It just comes natural to them to do it."—Pearson's Weekly.

He Turned the Laugh.

President O'Hanlon of the Pennington (N. J.) seminary used to preach every Monday morning at Ocean Grove, and one of his regular hearers was a good Methodist brother who used to shout "Glory!" whenever anything pleased him. Once in awhile this shout would come in at an inopportune moment.

After Dr. O'Hanlon had been preaching on Monday mornings for a number of years he arose one day to announce his text. He introduced his remarks with these words: "Brethren I have been preaching here at Ocean Grove on Monday mornings for a number of years, but some of these days when you are gathered here I will be missing, for the grass will be growing over my grave." Just then the shouter uttered a shrill "Oh, G-l-o-r-y!"

Sedate as was that congregation, there went up a hearty laugh. The doctor was equal to the occasion. He put his hands in his pockets, leaned back and said, "Well, brother, what have you got against me?" The laugh was turned, order was soon restored, and the doctor preached with his usual power and acceptability.—New York Tribune.

The Americans in Egypt.

Americans occupy an important position in extending the prosperity and civilization of modern Egypt.

Not only do they form at least one-third of the tourists visiting Egypt, and number some of the leading Egyptologists, but the beneficent effect of their missions and schools is everywhere apparent throughout Egypt. The magnitude of their Christian operations may be gathered from the fact that the Egyptian mission of the American Presbyterian has 100 stations, 20 churches and 97 schools. Ask a little Egyptian child where it has learned its English, and it will very probably answer, "At the American mission." The mission doctors, too, are of much service. An English lady might have died on board our mail steamer had a telegram not been sent to an American mission physician, who came on board, attended to her and removed her to the hospital at Assuit.—North American Review.

Mr. Bonni Snubbed by Dickens.

"Dodd the Dustman," who founded the barge race, meant to be the founder of the Royal Dramatic college. He offered the money to Benjamin Webster and Charles Dickens and was not altogether well treated in the matter. He was certainly not an aristocratic donor, and the source of the money might have been materials for ridicule, but he certainly merited more civility than he got. Webster shelved him rather shabbily, and Dickens caricatured him as "Boffin, the Golden Dustman."—London Mail.

Will Cure Him Eventually.

"I feel considerably encouraged about Blusher."

"Why, I thought you told me he was incurable—that he smoked the nasty little things incessantly, and they had given him a constant cough."

"That's why I am encouraged. The cough is getting worse."—Chicago Tribune.

Easy Enough to Tell.

Briggs—And so you consider McFadden a clever delineator of characters?

Griggs—Yes.

Briggs—And can you readily distinguish his German dialect from his Irish brogue?

Griggs—Oh, dear, yes. The program tells when he is going to imitate German-English and when he is going to give us a little Irish brogue.

A THRILLING MOMENT

THE DARING ACT OF HEROISM OF AN OIL WELL SHOOTER.

He Played Back Stop In the Game Between Life and Death, With Napsie In the Box and Twenty Quarts of Nitroglycerin Doing Service as the Ball.

One of the most thrilling experiences recorded in the annals of shooters' careers was that in which Dick Singleton, an old time Bradford shooter, played the role of hero. He played it well too. That the sensational drama did not turn out to be a tragedy in which six lives were taken in the last act is due to the hero's cool head, quick decision and superb nerve in the face of almost certain death.

Singleton was one of the best known shooters in the Bradford field. He had all the qualities which enter into the make up of a successful juggler with death's agencies. He had shot hundreds of wells and transported glycerin all over roads which at certain seasons had no counterpart for all round villainy anywhere, but his reckless caution had always averted a catastrophe.

One day Singleton started out to shoot a well located near Bradford. The well had been "drilled in" two or three days before, but the shooter had been too busy to put in a shot.

Arrived at the well Singleton proceeded to fill the shells with glycerin from his cans. That is a proceeding of some delicacy, as glycerin allows no liberties to be taken with it. Care must be exercised in pouring the stuff from the cans into the shells.

The well was about 1,800 feet deep, and during the interval since drilling had stopped about 1,000 feet of fluid had accumulated in the hole.

There was nothing unusual about that, but something unusual did happen suddenly and most inopportune; something calculated to turn one's hair gray and make such an impression on the memories of the men present as time could not efface.

The glycerin shell had been lowered several hundred feet, and Singleton was slowly playing out the cord, when he felt the line slacken. Immediately he heard an ominous roar. It was a sound to appall the stoutest heart.

The well had started to flow!

Singleton knew the meaning of that sound. He knew that a column of oil 1,000 feet high, obeying the impetus of the mighty forces of nature, then in convulsion 3,000 feet underground, was forcing to the surface with a velocity of a cannon ball a shell containing 20 quarts of glycerin.

He realized that the propulsive energy of that column of oil would project the shell against the timbers of the derrick with tremendous force. No need to speculate on what would follow the impact.

All this was flashed upon Singleton's consciousness as he stood leaning over the hole. The thought flash and the signal of peril were coincident in point of time.

It was an awful moment—such a moment as no man had ever experienced and lived to describe.

Singleton's companions understood the import of that terrifying sound. Acting upon a natural impulse, they turned to flee, seeking in flight the safety which they knew it was futile to hope for. Almost before terror could impart motion to their limbs the catastrophe would befall.

If Singleton had lost his head or hesitated for only a fractional part of a second, six men would have been blown into eternity, and another horror would have been added to the long list charged to the account of nitroglycerin.

But he did not lose his head. He knew that flight was useless. No time for that. Whether he should run or stay, death seemed to be inevitable.

If he should stay, there was one chance—only one. It came to Singleton like an inspiration. The one chance decided him. Desperate as it was—a million to one that it would fail—he resolved to take it.

Who can say what passed through the man's mind during the inappreciable fraction of time that he waited to put his plan into execution?

Perhaps Singleton himself could not describe what his mental vision beheld in that brief interval between the warning and the appearance of the messenger of eternity.

He was conscious of nothing but the peril which was rushing upon him and his companions and of the stern resolve to stand at his post and do all that heroic manhood could do to avert the impending doom.

Men think quickly at such time. Singleton's mind acted with the celerity of lightning. His muscles obeyed the mandate of the will with electric promptitude.

He made his title clear to heroism on that eventful day. He braced himself, and as the shell shot from the hole he threw his arms around it, not knowing but the sudden arrest of motion would explode the charge and not knowing that he could hold the shell at all.

Desperation gave him strength. There he stood, victor over death, surprised to find himself alive and smothered in the thick, greasy fluid which flowed from the well and fell in torrents upon him. But he held fast to the prize which his alert mind, quick eye and prompt action had won in the hand to hand grapple with the forces of destruction.

Singleton is still living somewhere in the lower oil country, and he occasionally tries his hand at a shot, but if he should live until the final day of judgment he could never forget the day when he played back stop in the game between life and death, with nature in the box and 20 quarts of nitroglycerin doing service as a ball.—St. Louis Republic.

Manly Caught.

A certain Greek adventurer some years ago undertook to palm off upon the public some false copies of the great manuscripts. Many learned men were deceived, but not Dr. Quesada, librarian of the Bodleian library at Oxford. How he detected the fraud is related in his own words in The Spectator:

I never really opened the book, but I held it in my hand and took one page of it between my finger and thumb while I listened to the reader's account of how he found this most interesting antiquity.

At the end of three or four minutes I handed it back to him with the above comment, "Nineteenth century paper, my dear sir," and he took it away in a hurry and did not come again.

Yes, I was pleased, but I have handled several ancient manuscripts in my time, and I know the feel of old paper.

And Not James.

"Why," asked the lay figure, "do you call it a jimmy?"

The burglar shook his head sadly.

"Well," he answered, and his regret was apparent, "I suppose I am rather more familiar with it than I ought to be. Yes."—Detroit Journal.

CARSON CITY, NEVADA,
July 29, 1896.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE State of Nevada, under the Act of Congress approved June 16, 1890 (21 Stat. 387), has filed in the United States Land Office at Carson City, Nevada, List No. 324 of lands selected under said Act, and has applied for a patent for said lands; that a part of said list is open to the public for inspection, and a copy thereof, by descriptive sub-division, has been posted in a convenient place in said United States Land Office for the inspection of all persons interested and the public generally.

Within the next sixty days following the date of this notice, protests or contests against the claim of said State of Nevada to any tract or sub-division described in the list, on the ground that the same is more valuable for mineral than agricultural purposes, will be received and noted by the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office at Carson City, Nevada, for report to the General Land Office at Washington, D. C.

The following are the sub-divisions described to-wit: NW 1/4 of SE 1/4, Sec. 4, T. 24 N., R. 18 E., M. D. B. & M., 40 A. C. PRATT.
